In a world that often marginalizes students of color, Habiba Cooper Diallo's story is a beacon of hope and inspiration. As the founder of Blackinschool, a non-profit organization dedicated to increasing diversity and representation in schools, Habiba has dedicated her life to empowering young people and creating a more just and equitable education system.

In her book, Blackinschool: A Journey of Success and Empowerment, Habiba shares her personal experiences as a student of color navigating a predominantly white educational system. From facing microaggressions to being the only black student in her advanced placement classes, Habiba's journey is a testament to the challenges and triumphs faced by students of color in schools today.

But Habiba's story is more than just a personal narrative. It is a call to action for all of us to work towards creating a more inclusive and equitable education system. Through her work with Blackinschool, Habiba has developed a proven model for increasing diversity and representation in schools. This model, which includes mentorship programs, teacher training, and curriculum development, has been shown to improve student outcomes and create more welcoming and supportive learning environments for all students.

Habiba's story is a powerful reminder that education is the key to unlocking human potential. By investing in our students and creating a more just and equitable education system, we can create a better future for all.

In her book, Blackinschool, Habiba Cooper Diallo:

- Shares her personal experiences as a student of color navigating a predominantly white educational system.
- Provides a blueprint for creating a more inclusive and equitable education system.
- Offers practical advice for students, parents, and educators on how to create positive change in schools.

If you are passionate about education and social justice, then you need to read Blackinschool. Habiba Cooper Diallo's story is a powerful reminder that we all have a role to play in creating a more just and equitable world.
