

Master the Art of Military Communication with FM 90-38: Multiservice Air/Air/Air/Surface/Surface/Air Brevity Codes

Effective communication is the lifeblood of any military operation. The ability to convey clear and concise messages across different platforms and services is essential for successful coordination, situational awareness, and mission accomplishment. For over half a century, the U.S. military and its allies have relied on a standardized set of brevity codes to facilitate rapid and accurate communication during air, land, and sea operations. These codes, known as Multiservice Air/Air/Air/Surface/Surface/Air (A/A/A/S/S/A) Brevity Codes, are the foundation of military communication doctrine and are used by the U.S. Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, as well as by NATO and allied forces worldwide.
