A Journey into the Dark Heart of Science

From the prestigious halls of MIT to the laboratories of the Eugenics Record Office, author Keith Wailoo meticulously traces the rise and fall of the pseudoscience of racial science. This engrossing narrative delves into the lives of the key figures who promoted these dangerous ideas, revealing the motivations and consequences of their misguided research.

John Munro Long: The Father of Racial Science

Enter John Munro Long, a brilliant physician and scientist whose fascination with racial differences led him down a path of scientific hubris. Long's ideas formed the foundation for generations of scientists, setting the stage for a tragic chapter in human history.

Charles Davenport: The Architect of Eugenics

Meet Charles Davenport, the charismatic director of the Eugenics Record Office, who used his influence to advance the cause of racial purity. Davenport's legacy as a pioneer of eugenics casts a long shadow over the scientific community, leaving an indelible mark on our understanding of human genetics.

The Devastating Impact of Racial Science

Wailoo's meticulous research lays bare the devastating consequences of racial science. From forced sterilization to segregation and genocide, these ideas provided justification for some of the darkest chapters in human history. The book exposes the chilling reality of how science can be twisted to serve hateful ideologies.
