The story begins with the author's great-grandmother, Chaya-Sarah. Chaya-Sarah was born in Janowka in 1870, and she lived there her entire life. She was a strong and independent woman who raised eight children on her own. Chaya-Sarah's story is a testament to the resilience of the human spirit in the face of adversity.

The author's grandmother, Zelda, was born in Janowka in 1900. She was a beautiful and intelligent woman who married a successful businessman. Zelda and her husband had three children, but their lives were tragically cut short when the Nazis invaded Volhynia in 1941. Zelda and her children were murdered in the Holocaust.

The author's mother, Miriam, was born in Janowka in 1920. She was the only one of Chaya-Sarah's children to survive the Holocaust. Miriam immigrated to the United States after the war, where she married and raised a family. Miriam's story is a story of hope and renewal.

The Women of Janowka is a powerful and moving story that sheds light on the lives of women in a forgotten corner of the world. This book is a tribute to the strength and resilience of the human spirit.
